FIRE ALERT

Fire is seldom something you worry about in the garden, but with more of us putting furniture with potentially flammable cushions into our gardens and conservatories, it is an issue that the Leisure & Outdoor Furniture Association (LOFA) is trying to address with a new campaign.

LOFA is a 50-year-old UK trade association that represents leading manufacturers of garden and outdoor-living equipment, helping them develop good working practices, a respect for the environment and provide up-to-date information for customers. The green

Look for the green LOFAssured label (inset) when buying garden equipment

LOFAssured label on a product means it's covered by both Trading Standards and current fire-safety regulations.

So, when you're shopping for new products to spruce up your garden or patio, look for the label so you know you will be making a sensible purchase.
